This is the third, and final, book in the Through Fisher's Eyes trilogy. Fisher and his autistic super-hero friends must lead the Earth to a new life as part of a global community. They meet an alien named Robert, a mountain man named Mountain John, and a mysterious alien being named Triptych. Will Fisher and his friends be able to lead the people of Earth away from their violent ways? Full of magic, inter-planetary action and mystery! Great adventure for readers 12 and up! Please note: There are some references in this book to Buddhism, Christianity and Judaism. This book is available in the full Fisher's Autism Trilogy one-volume set. All three books are aimed at middle school students and teachers. Paul Nelson, the author, taught elementary and middle school students for 15 years. He wrote this trilogy while he was still teaching and tested them on hundreds of middle school and high school students. The response was overwhelmingly positive. These books are also used by Pace University's Special Education Department as a text book, and there is a plan to make the books, and audio books, available to middle schools throughout the New York City Area. A Problem With the Moon asks the question, "Can the people of Earth break away from their destructive ways and live in peace?" In the end, it's up to Fisher and his autistic warriors to try and encourage peace, tolerance and kindness. Please give it a try today!

This is a book for tall people, those who relate to them, and anyone interested in height in general. Being tall coincides with considerable professional, athletic, and social benefits. Yet there are also some problems, and these raise some questions. For instance, if longer levers and more cells really are behind increased risk of injuries and cancer, then how is it that giraffes get by? And why is it that society reveres tall stature but then compromises our safety with cramped cars and other things? And, as tall women might be pondering, where have all the tall, dark, and handsome men gone? Lastly, what can be done about all this? These questions and more will all be answered by a tall protagonist over eight chapters: Evolution, Scaling, Spine, Manufactured, Ergonomics, Growth, Longevity, and Society.

The book is designed to provide a flowing description of the physiology of heat stress, the illnesses associated with heat exposure, recommendations on optimising health and performance, and an examination of Olympic sports played in potentially hot environmental conditions. In the first section the book examines how heat stress affects performance by outlining the basics of thermoregulation and how these responses impact on cardiovascular, central nervous system, and skeletal muscle function. It also outlines the pathophysiology and treatment of exertional heat illness, as well as the role of hydration status during exercise in the heat. Thereafter, countermeasures (e.g. cooling and heat acclimation) are covered and an explanation as to how they may aid in decreasing the incidence of heat illness and minimise the impairment in performance is provided. A novel and particular feature of the book is its inclusion of sport-specific chapters in which the influence of heat stress on performance and health is described, as well as strategies and policies adopted by the governing bodies in trying to offset the deleterious role of thermal strain. Given the breadth and scope of the sections, the book will be a reference guide for clinicians, practitioners, coaches, athletes, researchers, and students.
