Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is an unprecedented public health emergency, with associated significant economic impact, affecting all developing and developed countries. As it unfolds and countries respond, the role of Supreme Audit Institutions (SAIs) is being recognized as crucial to supporting the government response mechanisms through maintaining public financial management discipline and ensuring transparency and accountability. Past experience from SAIs' engagement in government responses to natural and human-made disasters, including health emergencies like Ebola, provides good lessons for SAIs confronted with the COVID-19 pandemic. This note seeks to propose ideas on how SAIs can respond to the crisis now and during the recovery phase. During the emergency stage, the primary focus of governments is on safeguarding livelihoods and public health. Auditors are themselves constrained both by their physical access limitations and the imperative to avoid impeding government's speedy responses to the pandemic. Under these circumstances, crucial oversight and key controls may suffer, especially as public financial management systems are adapted to be responsive and flexible.

oversee the management of public funds and the quality and credibility of governments' reported financial data. In the past the World Bank and other donors often established parallel auditing systems for their projects, undermining developing countries' supreme audit institutions, on whose work they could not always rely. Equally problematic have been projects that encouraged performance auditing but ignored basic weaknesses in financial management. In recent years the Bank has tried to strengthen oversight agencies such as supreme audit institutions. This note is intended to help Bank staff appreciate the role and nature of these institutions, particularly in managing public spending, ensuring financial accountability, and strengthening public institutions.

This research is undertaken to explore factors, which are affecting role of Supreme Audit Institution (SAI) of Pakistan to bring transparency and accountability in Public-Parliament-PAOs relationship. Data triangulation involves the use of questionnaires and interviews with audit officers to support the research objective. Research findings highlight that SAI is not playing its role effectively to bring accountability and transparency due to several macro and micro factors e.g. performance related factors, Ineffective training systems, resource constraints and negative behavior of auditee. It is suggested that President, Prime Minister and concerned authorities should consider these issues seriously to strengthen the role of SAI as a sole watch dog of Parliament to hold government entities accountable for fair appropriation of funds
